Choking Catarrh.

Have you awakened from a disturbed sleep with all the horrible sensations of an assassin clutching your throat and pressing the life-breath from your tightened chest? Have you noticed the languor and debility that succeed the effort to clear your throat and head of this catarrhal matter? What a depressing influence it exerts upon the mind, clouding the memory and filling the head with pains and strange noises! How difficult it is to rid the nasal passages, throat and lungs of this poisonous mucus all can testify who are afflicted with catarrh. How difficult to protect the system against its further progress to ward the lungs, liver and kidneys all physicians will admit. It is a terrible disease and cries out for relief and cure.

The remarkable curative powers when all other remedies utterly fail, of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE, are attested by thousands who gratefully recommend it to fellow-sufferers. No statement is made regarding it that cannot be substantiated by the most respectable and reliable references.

Each packet contains one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one of CATARRHAL FLUID and an IMPROVED INHALER with treatise and directions for use. Price by all druggists, $1.00.

RECENT APPOINTMENTS.

Brief Biographical Sketches of Fred Grant and John C. New.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Frederick D. Grant, who was today nominated to be minister to Austria and Hungary, is 25 years of age and the oldest son of General Grant. He accompanied his father during the war and was for three years before he was 15 years old. He was lieutenant of the Fourth cavalry when he resigned from the army in 1875, having seen three years' service or less in the Indian campaigns. While in service he married Miss Ida Honore, the daughter of an old citizen of Chicago and has two children, one boy and one girl. Since General Grant's death Colonel Grant has resided with his mother and cared for the estate.

John C. New of Indiana, who has been nominated to be consul general at London, is 50 years of age. He is a native Hoosier and graduate of Indiana college, Virginia. He served during the war as quartermaster-general for the state of Indiana and before that time had been clerk of Marion county. Since his resignation of the office of treasurer of the United States, he has been actively engaged in politics, being a member of the republican national committee and ex-chairman of the republican state committee of Indiana. In 1881 he became proprietor of the Indianapolis Journal, and has conducted that newspaper up to the present time.

THE OLD AT DUTY NEW.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Joseph Miller, commissioner of internal revenue, today took formal leave of the employes of his bureau. His successor, John W. Mason, has served his commission and will to-morrow enter upon the discharge of his official duties.

Secretary Windom is safe to be authority for the statement that there will be no changes in the office of the United States treasurer, now held by Mr. Hyatt, before the end of the fiscal year, June 30. It is understood that Joseph S. Houston of Indiana, has been promised the office when it becomes vacant.

ARIZONA'S NEW GOVERNOR.

Considerable Dissatisfaction in the Territory Over Wolfley's Nomination.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—The first man to be hauled up on a charge is Wolfley of Arizona, nominated to be governor of that territory. There seems to be a considerable uprising in the neighborhood of Tucson in opposition to his confirmation. All the members of the senate committee on territories are all receiving telegrams asking them to hang him up until the people of the territory may be heard from. One of the members of the committee on territories said: "If what some people in Arizona have said in their telegrams to us is true, there are serious reasons why Wolfley should not be governor. But it is a question whether they are not the result of personal feeling among disappointed Democrats. William Penn Nixon, now in Arizona, telegraphs us it is an excellent nomination and satisfactory to the best class of citizens of the territory."

PROBABLY FROM DISAPPOINTED ONES.

NEW YORK, March 20.—Delegate Smith of Arizona, says of the Wolfley confirmations: "I have a very slight acquaintance with Wolfley and I do not know the nature of the charge. Wolfley is a business man and I understand he bears a good reputation, but I have also heard there is considerable dissatisfaction over his appointment. There were a number of aspirants for gubernatorial honors, and I suppose the opposition comes from the friends of the disappointed candidates."

A CHARGE OF INTEMPERANCE.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—An evening paper commenting on the nomination of Wolfley to be governor of Arizona, says: "If Mr. Wolfley succeeds in being confirmed as governor of Arizona he may be able to fight. In addition to protests which have come up from the territory there are charges being made against him here. One of the latest dealt with the subject in that of intemperance. It seems that as soon as Mr. Wolfley heard of his nomination he indulged in a couple of days' spree in his room at the Ebbitt house, and among them they destroyed a whole bottle of wine. This charge has been made it is said because it is believed that alleged intemperance will cause the president to withdraw Wolfley's name."

William Penn Nixon, editor of the Chicago Inter Ocean, who is adjutanting in Tucson, telegraphs to the committee on territories that Wolfley's name introduced and seconded by the best citizens of the territory and that the charges against him come from disappointed office seekers.

FOR THE UMATILLA AGENCY.

Senator Mitchell Recommends the Appointment of Moorehouse.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Senator Mitchell has sent the following communication to Secretary Noble: "The Indian agent at the Umatilla agency, Oregon, was suspended by the president and an appointment ought to be made without unnecessary delay. The Oregon delegation, having united in recommending Hon. Leo Moorehouse, I simply desire to attract your attention to the case."

SENATE PROCEEDINGS.

Resolutions Regarding the Tenure of the President Pro Tempore.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—In the senate, after half an hour's wait without transacting any business, a paper was handed Sen. or Cullom and on his motion the senate went into executive session.

While the senate was sitting with closed doors Butler offered a series of resolutions which went over till to-morrow, declaring that the tenure of the president pro tem. is not terminated at the meeting of congress, and after recess, the vice president having appeared to take the chair, that the presence of the vice president does not have an effect to vacate the office of president pro tem. that the office of president pro tem. shall be held at the pleasure of the senate.

It was ordered that the daily hour of the meeting be 10 o'clock A. M. hereafter.

WAR NOMINATIONS CONFIRMED.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—In executive session, this afternoon, the senate confirmed the following nominations: John W. Mason of West Virginia, commissioner of internal revenue; John F. Ward, appraiser of merchandise for the Willamette district, Oregon; Chas. F. Mitchell, of Connecticut, consul at Leith.

The nominations made today were referred in executive session to appropriate committees.

THE OFFICE SOUGHT THE MAN.

Why Mr. Reid Was Sent to Go on the Mission to St. James.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—It is stated that the selection of Whitelaw Reid to go to France was entirely unsolicited either by himself or his friends. It was known the intention of the president, soon after his election, to confer him some important appointment and this is understood would have been the mission to England, for reasons expressed that the earliest attention of home rule or Ireland by the Tory ministry and the relations of Ireland with the two governments and Lord Salisbury's cordial handwould be of a rabbis.

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS.

Northwestern Interests.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Secretary Noble has decided that the land in the Tacoma land district, Washington territory, granted to the Vancouver, Washington territory, land district covered by the Northern Pacific railroad grant, is subject to settlement and entry under the homestead and pre-emption laws.

Postmasters appointed—William Smith, of Kenton, for a hotwell duty; deviser and Martin, of Seattle, for a planing machine.

The postoffice at Vinson, Umatilla county, Oregon, will be discontinued from April 10.

On the recommendation of Senator Mitchell the mail service has been increased on one route from Astoria, Oregon, to Grays Harbor, Washington territory, to twice a week from April 1.

Secretary Blaine says that there will be no radical change in the policy of this administration in regard to the protection of seal life in the waters of Behring sea. He says that the government will prevent, as once, for the patrolling of Behring sea by cruisers to prevent the taking of seals unlawfully. It is expected that a proclamation warning all who intend to trespass upon these waters for the purpose of taking seal unlawfully will be issued in a few days.

Not Up to the Requirements.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—It has been decided that the 14-foot bluefish of superior to the Norfolk navy yard for use in the construction of the Texas do not come up to the requirements. The contract is that the rolls made are subject to and inspected by steamboat. The contractors are now altering the rolls to conform to the terms of the contract. After the rolls were purchased it was found that it would be impossible to do that without changing the entire plan of the Texas, as the rolls can be used for a large range of work, and new 20-foot rolls can be procured by the time they are needed, which will be at least six months hence.

An Ex-Congressman Sentenced.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Ex-Congressman Peter J. McGee of Brooklyn, is lying very dangerously ill in this city. Mahoney is a victim of fever from the Washington inauguration weather.

TO REORGANIZE THE WABASH.

Final Proceedings With That in View To Be Begun in Chicago.

CHICAGO, March 20.—The final proceedings in the great Wabash litigation will take place here to-morrow and receivers and bondholders of that road are pleasantly in Chicago to-night.

The purchasing committee, having authority from a majority of the bondholders to buy in both portions of the road, appear confident that they will consummate the purchase and in the discharge from bankruptcy of every mile of the old Wabash. The complete reorganization of the system. One-third of the bonds of first mortgage bonds representing one-third of $21,000,000, are opposed to the scheme. They are also here in force and will now before Judges Gresham and Jackson contest the reorganization committee's programme.

The purchasing committee's plan is to perfect the sale of the Chicago division and to reorganize the remaining divisions, namely, the main line from Toledo to Hannibal and from Decatur to St. Louis.

It is expected by the committee that Judges Gresham and Jackson to-morrow will order the foreclosure and sale to take place under the first and second mortgages.

If their expectations are realized allowing the necessary time that the system east of the Mississippi river will be in the hands of the purchasing committee, at once under the control of the Wabash and Western Junction.

This would add to the Wabash Western 906 miles, permitting under one management the present cut in two by Judge Gresham a couple of years ago.

The outstanding one-third of the first mortgage bondholders will, however, make a vigorous fight against the committee's programme.

STAMPING ON THE AMERICAN FLAG.

Singular Conduct at a Celebration in Canada.

KINGSTON, Ont., March 20.—Some excitement has been occasioned here over an incident which occurred here recently, in which the American flag played a prominent part. The City hall was crowded by a fashionable audience to witness the National Representations. Miss Annie Harold, one of the petted belles in the city, was selected to appear as queen of England.

On the floor of the stage was spread the stars and stripes and thereon was erected a throne. After Professor Marshall, of Queen's university, who acted as chairman, had made some remarks, the characters came on the platform, the queen first carrying her scepter. He directed her to the throne and when she took her seat he alluded to the stars and stripes as being beneath her, and said that the fact showed the relations existing between England and the United States.

Some of those who were present say that she then stamped on it. A murmur ran over the audience, as many Americans were present.

The professor again pointed to the flag and while the queen was looking down at it said that in the way Britons look at the American flag. Many of the loyalists in the hall took exception in private to the action of the professor, who is a Scotchman, and the press also strongly disapproved of the professor's course.

A HUMAN FIEND.

He Attempts an Assault on a Woman, and Inflicts Fatal Wounds.

NEWARK, N. J., March 20.—While Ferdinand Mutter, a milkman living at Irvington, was away from home this morning and the older children at school, Joseph Saltman, a farm hand, bound the three younger children and threw them into a barn loft. He then attempted to assault Mrs. Mutter but failing he knocked her insensible with a hammer.

Saltzman then ransacked the house. Mrs. Mutter, recovering consciousness, endeavored to make her escape, but Saltzman again knocked her down by repeated blows of the hammer and then fled. One of the children escaping from the barn, now gave the alarm and physicians were summoned.

Mrs. Mutter is not expected to survive her injuries. Saltzman arrived from Switzerland November 5, 1888.

A FATAL BALE.

The Mule Went Up, the Car Went Down and a Tragedy Resulted.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., March 20.—From the San Pedro stage driver it is learned that an Italian named Pasquinelli met a horrible death in one of the mines there yesterday.

It appears that a loaded car was being pushed up the track by a mule. A rope was attached to the animal which had to pull down the grade in order to propel the car to the surface. When the car had almost reached the top the mule suddenly stopped and the car started back and at a frightful speed dragging the animal upward. The Italian was walking on the track and as the car descended the wheels struck the unfortunate man and buried him to the ground in an insensible condition. He lived only a few hours.

A LARGE SALE OF PICTURES.

Over $23,000 Paid at New York for a Single Painting.

NEW YORK, March 20.—The second and last night's sale of Erwin Davis's collection of paintings attracted a large crowd at Chickering hall tonight.

The last picture disposed of was Bastien Lepage's "Joan of Arc" which was started by a bid of $10,000 and run up to $23,500 at which price it was sold to a Boston buyer. This was the highest price paid for any one picture in the collection.

To-night's sale footed up $38,315 and the night previous $35,645, a total of $73,960 for 142 paintings.

The second best price, $11,000, was paid for Troyon's "Return to Normandy."

OUTLAWS AT BAY.

The Desperadoes Who Recently Tortured People in Pennsylvania.

PITTSBURG, March 20.—Word is received tonight that six desperate men among them are the three known to be Lewis, Ramsey, Sullivan and Yeakey of the party which committed tortures on citizens at McClellandtown last week are located near Markleysville, a mountain settlement in the southern border of Fayette county. They are armed to the teeth, and constantly on guard against surprise. The Markleysville people can not raise a posse strong enough to make an attack on the men and they have asked for assistance from Uniontown, the county seat. They also ask the county commissioners to increase the reward for the capture of the outlaws to $10,000.

CLEVELAND'S TRIP.

The Party Arrive at St. Augustine Where They Receive an Ovation.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 20.—Ex-President Cleveland and party arrived here this morning. They breakfasted on the car and subsequently crossed the ferry to South Jacksonville and proceeded in a chartered car to St. Augustine, Florida. The party was met at the Jacksonville station at St. Augustine by over 500 people, the Ponce de Leon band and a long line of carriages and were escorted to the Ponce de Leon. This afternoon a drive of two hours was taken over the city. To-night there was an informal reception at the hotel and a grand pyrotechnic display with a concert and ball concluded the day's festivities. The party will proceed to Tampa this afternoon and the trip by ship to Charleston.

A Big Catch of Seals.

NEW YORK, March 20.—Mr. Stephen Hargrave Osbridge commissioner of Alaska, has received a letter from Captain Hyatt from the revenue cutter Bear, published at Port Townsend, Washington territory, dated Nov. 5, 1888, in which he says: "The seal catch of the Bering sea fleet will be 27,000 skins. All the vessels are now engaged in killing 30,000 seals on Copper Island. This island has only seals and Russians on it. The Russians are not allowed to kill seals. The seals are protected by the Russian government, and each skin is taken by the natives, who receive $1 per skin. The vessels will all be out of the sea to make another trip next spring."

Rio Must Hang.

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 20.—The board of pardons tonight refused to commute the sentence of death in the case of Mrs. Sarah Whiteling, who was convicted of murder in the first degree for killing her last Mrs. Whiteling was executed at Bellefonte with poisoning her husband April 1, 1887. She was sentenced to be hanged the fifth of this month.

READY TO BE FORGIVEN

Aubrey and His Bride Waiting at Milwaukee

FOR THE PARENTAL BLESSING.

To Father-in-Law Chief Justice Crain—Annoyed at the Efforts of Mr. Fuller Friends to Discredit Mr. Aubrey.

MILWAUKEE, WIS., March 20.—The marriage last night of Miss Minnie Fuller, daughter of Chief Justice Fuller, and J. M. Aubrey, a youth of meagre attainments in this city, is a subject of much gossip here. Both families are well known in Illinois, formerly living in Chicago, and have many friends here who, while they recognize the social disparity between the contracting parties, are not unwilling to extend the hand of congratulation to the bride's father-in-law, who, it is said, has a position in the office of its editor.

Mr. Aubrey arrived in the city yesterday and registered at the Plankinton house. He said he had been in the employ of the Chicago Times, but had severed his connection with that paper. He said he had other irons in the fire, and would look around for a position before he left the city.

PORTLAND, THURSDAY, MARCH 21.

AN UNPROFITABLE PURSUIT.

It is probable that office-seeking is the most unprofitable pursuit in the world. When it succeeds best it usually falls far short of real success; and since it fails one hundred times where it succeeds once, the fact becomes apparent how really profitless it is.

From all parts of the country great numbers have gone to Washington in pursuit of office. Even if a policy of speedy and wholesale decapitation by the president should be adopted, nine-tenths of these pilgrims would be disappointed. But there is no probability that such a policy will be adopted, and hence most of the remaining one-tenth will fail also. Other legions, who have remained at home to "work up" claims upon office for presentation to the president, will fail likewise; and even those who may succeed might do better in private occupations.

Take it all in all, we think office-holding the most demoralizing business in the world. After a man has held public position for a number of years he appears to be almost or quite disqualified for private endeavor. He loses his independence and knack of doing things for himself. When he gets out of office, as he surely will in time, he is quite likely to do nothing but sit round and wait for office to come to him again. And the chances are many that it will not come.

In many of our public offices good ability and special knowledge are required; but there is no case in which equal ability and equal knowledge, if employed in private pursuits, would not secure personal independence to him who might exert them. It is a common observation that dependence on office, in a great majority of cases, leads to poverty and helplessness. There is literally "nothing in it." What proportion of persons among us are looking towards office with longing eyes, can only be conjectured; but the number certainly is large. Yet, in fact, there are extremely few offices in our state, which the president has power to fill, that are worth taking by men really fit to fill them well. Talent, capacity, fidelity, are qualities that deserve better rewards, and would obtain them, if their possessors would only rely on the resources they have within themselves, and not be content with waiting, in dependence, on the office that will seldom or never come.

Most men of character and ability will usually have business of their own that they cannot afford to leave for the uncertain tenure of office. There are exceptions, of course, and these exceptions will always be found sufficient to fill the positions, and the government will not need to go begging for candidates for important positions, but the rule will hold good as an average that competent men have their own affairs to attend to, and the class of political worthies who are always clamoring for office are men who have not the ability to build up business for themselves, but imagine they are competent to run the affairs of the nation. There may have been a time when able business men were chosen to serve the state and felt obliged to lay down their private interests and accept office as a public duty. This honorable state of things is gone by long ago, never to return. The theory that office is a public trust has given place to another, that office is a reward of service. There are scores of applicants for every place and they claim that they have earned place by political services rendered.

The seeking for office becomes chronic with many, and the man who follows this occupation usually becomes useless for such ordinary duties. There are men whose character and standing are worth much to the party they belong to, but those are not often the men who become chronic office-seekers. The policy of the Cleveland dynasty was to reward party workers and to do this they were obliged to go south, since the most reliable democrats are found there, so we have seen the territories officered with ex-confederates and the consular and diplomatic service has been turned over to Southern men.

Harrison is pursuing a policy in his appointments that gives satisfaction to good citizens, and it is to be hoped he can bring about a reasonable civil service reform that can become a national policy. The office seeker, as such, deserves no recognition. His rule should be enforced that office seeks the man and not the man the office. The craze for office is demoralizing. There should be no more compensation or emolument in public service than private interests pay for equally important service. The great railroad systems, the great newspapers, and the banks and business houses that lead in trade, recognize personal value and bid often high salaries for individual worth. They generally get their money's worth. That should be the national policy as well.

A HOME OF THEIR OWN.

The Woman's Boarding Home, maintained by the Portland Woman's Union in this city, has passed beyond the experimental stage, although the society that inaugurated it is less than two years old, and may already be said to have achieved success. Its usefulness has been demonstrated beyond a doubt. The question now is not whether there is a demand for such an institution, but how shall we supply the constantly increasing demand of honorable, industrious working women, for home privileges, at rates which their wages enable them to pay, without hardship? Intelligent effort is being made to answer this question satisfactorily, with every prospect of immediate success. Womanlike, the women who control the matter want a home of their own. That is to say, they are anxious for the society to own the home, thus taking an important step toward making the institution a permanent one. This desire has met already with liberal response from generous citizens, and there is no doubt but it will in due time be realized.

The institution, though charitable in a degree, is yet governed by a common-sense element of independence that requires every inmate to pay her way, according to her ability to do so. It adapts itself not so much to the wants as to the circumstances of its inmates, by giving them shelter, protection and home comforts at rates which they can afford to pay. It will succeed, of course. Practical endeavor bears everywhere, and in all lines a generous fruitage of usefulness.

EXTREME MEASURES PROPOSED.

The political grange evidently has his eye on Minnesota, intent upon converting it into a veritable paradise for himself and his impracticable brethren. His persistent efforts have resulted in bringing before the legislature of that state a bill fixing an arbitrary schedule of rates on grain and its manufactured products, which the railroads of that state must observe or go out of business. The penalty for a violation of the rates fixed is a fine of from $1000 to $5000, and if violation of the scale is persisted in, of forfeiture of their franchises, charters and corporate rights, which amounts to a confiscation of the property of the roads. In case any road derives its charter and franchises from the state, these shall be forfeited, and if incorporated, and is incorporated under the laws of another state, it shall be prevented from doing business in the state of Minnesota.

Now the corporation horse is notably a stubborn, as well as a greedy animal. The political granger may, after much worry, lead the creature to the water, but thus far all efforts to make him drink have been futile. It is only when a state is anxious to abolish railways within its limits, and to return to the "prairie schooner" era in the matter of transporting freight that it can afford to pass such a law as this. It is reasonably safe to say that Minnesota has not yet reached this stage of its history and development. The agricultural interests of the state have no doubt suffered, in common with those of other sections of the Northwest in the matter of exorbitant freight charges. But even the hand of extortion, though heavy, has not been paralyzing, as the remarkable growth and almost phenomenal prosperity of the state will attest; a tie-up of the transportation business certainly would be, and agriculturists would be the greatest sufferers. Of course there is nothing to be apprehended from such a law. If its extreme measures do not make it a legislative impossibility they will cause it to be an easy prey to the legal judgment. The main object of the introduction of such a bill is to make its author "solid," so to speak, with a constituency that chafes under excessive freight rates and rejoices in any effort that will call public attention to their grievances.

It is to be hoped that Oregon office-seekers, whose claims for services to the party are not likely to be recognized for a week or two—perhaps longer—will not grow discouraged; go to work, or do anything else desperate or unusual. There must be some consolation and even hope for them in the fact that 50,000 census takers will by given employment next year.

With the Grant monument not yet commenced, the people of New York have the effrontery to talk of erecting a monument to Ericsson. Talk is cheap, but unfortunately for the credit of the great metropolis, it takes money to build monuments.

PORTLAND, THURSDAY, MARCH 21.

A PRACTICAL VIEW.

Our dispatches yesterday morning announced that President Harrison's policy in regard to removals of competent democratic officials would be governed by common sense He will fill all offices of consequence, whose incumbents inevitably, by their close and constant contact with the people exert an influence for or against the practical success of his administration with men who are in full sympathy with the republican party, but he will not remove democrats who are competent officials and whose duties do not make them a political partisan force among the people He will not remove an upright and efficient consul who had not exerted himself to manufacture lying industrial statistics to make fictitious capital for his party This is not the heroic policy demanded by the mugwumps, but why is it not a fair and sensible way of dealing with the difficult question of removals from office?

President Harrison has all his life been a sturdy, stalwart, aggressive republican, he fully believes that under the sway of republican policy and principles the nation is better off than under the domination of the piebald democracy,—a conglomerate of resurrected copperheads, bitter Southern bourbons and sentimental mugwump theorists. The democratic party has become the "spotted Cayuse" of politics President Harrison is entirely practical in dealing with this subject He says: "I will as faithfully execute the civil service law as I do all other laws, but outside the law I certainly shall not use the opportunity of my position to the disadvantage of a great party whose policy and principles, in my judgment, are more efficient when enacted and executed than the policy and principles of the democracy." He says further 'If I find an upright and efficient democrat in a position where he is a mere fly on the wheel of my administration I will not remove him, but if I find a democrat in office who, by virtue of his important position and by his aggressive determination and inclination, is both able and willing to use his adventitious opportunity to create a 'hot box' in the rolling stock of my administration, that democrat must go"

It seems to us that this is a straightforward sensible policy It is sound political practice, which can no more be nailed to the cross of pitiless, unyielding theory than the art of war in practice can be restricted to the maxims of Jomini or the vaporing of Wolseley. Practical politics is as different from theoretical politics of the simpering or cackling mugwump—'the gentleman in politics"—as a book of tactics is from the shifting conduct of a great battle; or as McClellan's peninsular campaign, where he dug like a mole when he ought to have fought like a tiger, differs from Grant at Donelson, Shiloh, Vicksburg, Chattanooga and the Wilderness. McClellan fought by the book, a mere imitative military monkey, Grant fought by the brain and his common sense and courage carried him through to final, complete conquest. President Harrison evidently proposes to deal with his duty as Grant dealt with his dire responsibility He says "I propose to use my position as leader of my party for the strengthening of my party, because I believe that the supremacy of my party stands for the most permanent safety and glory of this nation. If I find a democrat in office putting a stick in the wheels of my administration I will cut off his head as relentlessly as I would shoot a man I saw poisoning my well, but because I propose to use my opportunity under law to perpetuate my party and its policy in power I do not propose to eject from office a decent and efficient democrat who does his duty and occupies no vantage ground where his partisanship can embarrass my administration"

It seems to us that this is a sensible method and conclusion. Harrison makes no stupid promises to the political "sand peeps" and "tester tails" that pose as mugwump statesmen, he indulges no melodramatic civil service reform homilies, he simply says I will execute the law whether I like it or not, and beyond that I will go as I please according as I think the cause of good government can be strengthened, maintained and perpetuated" President Harrison is clearly not a man of theories, but a man of practice He believes that the growth and perpetuation of the political forces that were the life of the republican party are the best assurance of the perpetuity and glory of the nation, he is bound by the gyves of no absurd and insincere promises, he will not walk with the lock-step as did Cleveland all through his term, he promises nothing absolutely only to be president, doing for his party all that he honestly can do because he fervently believes that his party can in the future do the best for the nation, as it has indubitably in the past. Let us be thankful that President Harrison is not a "gusher," not a demagogue, not a doctrinaire, but a plucky thinker and doer, determined to do the best he can honestly for his party, because he believes his party's supremacy stands for the highest welfare of the nation.

THE LAND OF THE FREE.

A Chinaman recently was accused of corrupting some children in Milwaukee whereupon the mob rose and drove all the Chinese out of the city This action was absurd and unjust. Chinamen are entitled under our laws to a fair trial for any offenses they are charged with having committed, and there was no more justice or decency in hunting all the Chinamen in Milwaukee out of the city than there would be in hunting all Irishmen, Englishmen, Germans, Italians, etc, out of Portland, because somebody, standing for these various foreign bloods, was arrested charged with crime

The American people as a whole lack manliness. They are prompt to prosecute and abuse in every possible way a negro an Indian, a Chinaman or anybody who is classified as having "no friends" This cowardly trait is altogether too common at the North, but it is a universal attribute at the South. The meanness of the South was made evident on the 7th inst. at Charleston S C, when for the first time in the history of the state, three tynchers were convicted in the courts. But the conviction is easily explained by the fact that the convicts were colored men who had lynched a white man White men, however, are never convicted when they lynch negroes.

IS VIRTUE TO BEAR ALL THE BURDENS?

A reader of THE OREGONIAN sends the following, clipped from the Chicago News:

The dives and dens, the barrel houses and the thieves' resorts, are as bad and as frequent in this city to-day, after five years of high license, as they ever were. Call high license what it is, an easy way to raise revenue from vice, but let there be an end of indorsing it as a temperance or reform measure.

We suppose this is sent as an argument against high license. But in Chicago the license is not really high, the highest figure is $500, and for beer licenses the fee is less.

But suppose this law has not shut up "the dives and dens, the barrel-houses and the thieves' resorts," what then? Would it help matters in any degree to repeal the tax or reduce it? In a city like Chicago there are many "resorts" where drink is sold Such places are visited daily by perhaps two-thirds of the voting population It is utterly impossible to suppress them; and since they will exist, why not make them pay a tax? It is mere cant to protest against the tax as an expedient for 'raising a revenue from vice." Call them "dens of vice," if you will and then let us ask if virtue will regard it as a favor to be compelled to bear all the burdens of society and government?

It is reported that Secretary of War Proctor will be asked at an early day to revoke the order of Secretary Endicott which changed the regulations in regard to staff appointments that limit to four years the time during which any officer can be detached from his company regiment or corps to perform staff or other duty The principal change effected was that of striking out the words "aides-de-camp excepted" The effect of this order was to return to their regiments, not long afterward, those aides on the staff of general officers who had already exceeded this limit of four years and to displace others from time to time as the limit was reached. A period of at least three years of service with his regiment or corps is required to elapse before any officer thus returned again becomes available for detachment. General Sheridan tried to procure a revocation of this order, so far as his own staff was concerned, and so did General Schofield in the case of his staff officer, Major Sanger Secretary Endicott stood by his order but the clause "unless assigned to special duty by the war department," which was introduced into the regulations by the new order, enabled him to make a special provision for Major Sanger, by which he remained for a time on duty at General Schofield's headquarters.

The Lincoln monument at Springfield, Ill., was very defectively constructed, and is fast falling into decay So apparent is this that it is claimed that unless something substantial is done in the way of repairs it will soon be but a crumbling ruin. The legislature of Illinois has been asked to appropriate $50,000 for this purpose. Ex-Governor Palmer and Judge Hays appeared before the senate committee on appropriations to which the bill had been referred sharply arraigned the persons who superintended the construction of the faulty monument and made an eloquent plea for the appropriation. The matter is now in the hands of a sub-committee, and it is reasonably certain that the amount asked will be allowed It should be, certainly A monument that will not outlast individual memory is not more of a disgrace to those who superintended its construction than a continued state of decay and speedy ruin of the same would be to the state which proudly gave Lincoln to the nation, and reverently and sorrowfully received his dust, after his glorious work was done.

The total of appropriations for the next fiscal year exceeds by about $5,000,000 ex-Secretary Fairchild's estimate of expenditures for the year, and reduces by this amount the prospective surplus figured out by Fairchild for campaign purposes. The Fiftieth congress, by the confession of the New York Sun (dem.) voted away money more freely than any of its predecessors since the war. Here is the Sun's record for the last sixteen years:

Forty third congress—Grant	$202,732,698
Forty fourth congress—Grant ...	212,478,993
Forty-fifth congress—Hayes ...	83,077,432
Forty-sixth congress—Hayes	83,409,840
Forty-seventh congress — Garfield-Arthur	439,339,663
Forty-eighth congress—Arthur	306,089,510
Forty-ninth congress—Cleveland	402,695,243
Fiftieth congress—Cleveland.	388,864,229

The appropriations by the two congresses that sat during Cleveland's administration were nearly twice as great as those of the two congresses during Grant's second term.

Mrs Fuller, wife of the chief justice of the United States supreme court, is doubtless an estimable woman and an exemplary mother, but clearly she is not a very sagacious woman of the world, or she would have compromised on some basis with her obstreperous daughter and prevented an elopement in her family One can scarcely imagine a more unpleasant and amazing episode than that which has heralded a daughter of the chief justice over the country as a willful young woman who thought it smart to circumvent her mother by an elopement and was married in a hotel by a justice of the peace, at the end of a hurried and secret railway journey. It is only people in the quiet and secluded walks of life who can afford sensations of this kind, and even they find them, at times, exceedingly unpleasant.

Copper is down. The attempt to corner copper was backed up by the Rothschilds, exhausted the treasuries of rich syndicates, caused men who had been rich to blow their brains out and ruined many hopes,—and then failed, as all attempts to put up the price of indispensable things should fail. Copper was held at double and treble its value, and the great French combination thought it could control the world's copper and grow rich on the world's needs. The Nevada bank endeavored to control the wheat market and lost many of the millions made so easily, by manipulating the mining stock market—a genteel sort of highway robbery. Men who try to "sinch" the whole world usually find they have too big a contract on their hands

Chauncey F Black, of Pennsylvania, president of the National Association of democratic clubs, has issued a request to the societies under his jurisdiction to observe with all honor the birthday of Thomas Jefferson, which will occur on the 1st of April. Inasmuch as modern democracy, rank and file, has gotten about as far away from Jeffersonian principles in government, as modern democratic officials, (when there are any) have from Jeffersonian symplicity in social affairs, the effort to resuscitate the memory of the boasted father of democracy by ostentatious celebration of his 146th birthday is a somewhat strained, not to say a ghastly affair

Bishop Foley, of Detroit, has astonished his Catholic communicants by taking strong ground in favor of the public school system He said

I believe in the state providing educational facilities for its citizens and I think the public schools should be non sectarian. Sectarianism should not be allowed to enter into either politics or the public schools. When I vote I vote as John Foley, an American citizen, and I would vote for a Protestant candidate against a Catholic if the former was better fitted for the place than the latter I do not approve, however, of the maintenance of schools for the rich out of money taken from the poor

Mrs. Harrison is evidently possessed of the very natural desire to live through the presidential term of her husband In pursuance of a wise determination not to be worried to death she has caused the announcement to be made that she will not seek to influence appointments to office, thus shutting, or making heroic attempt to shut, the door upon impertinent and importunate people who desire an advocate at court.

Our naval vessels at Samoa at present are the Nipsic, which carries six smooth-bore guns and two rifles; the Trenton, which carries eleven, eight-inch rifles; the Vandalia, which carries seven smooth bores and one rifle. The other vessels of the Pacific fleet are the Dolphin, now at Corea, which carries one six inch modern steel rifle, two six-pound rapid firing guns and four forty-seven millimeter revolving cannon, the Alert, with four old smooth bores, at Honolulu. The Trenton is the largest, most powerful and best armed vessel we have at Samoa. The Marion, with seven smooth bores and one rifle, the Omaha, with twelve smooth bores, and the little Palos with a half dozen howitzers, were in Chinese waters at last accounts The Mohican, with seven smooth bores and one rifle is at Panama. This is the entire United States naval force in the Pacific ocean

According to the railroad records of America, the fastest single mile is said to have been made in 1879, in 50¼ seconds, the fastest 10 miles in 1874 in 8 minutes. According to English records, the Duke of Wellington's train ran from Paddington to Slough, 18 miles in 15 minutes That is about the best English record The average is 50 seconds to the mile, and both starting and stopping are included.

The Coast Mail says that there are still 320,000 acres of government land open to settlement in Coos county The immigration boom has not yet set that way to a very large extent, but it is evident that it should do so When the resources of Coos county are properly developed there will be some fortunes made and many prosperous homes located there.

The republicans of Winchester, Mass., recently held an election, ordered by the republican town committee for the purpose of suggesting a candidate for postmaster The successful candidate was a civil service commission graduate, a clerk in the Boston postoffice

It requires a two-thirds vote in New Hampshire to ratify a constitutional amendment. The prohibitionists hoped to get two-thirds, and lacked 5400 of getting a majority.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

It doesn't look exactly right that Harrison's boy should start a newspaper at Helena and take the public patronage in preference to the Fisks, who stood by and fought the republican battles for twenty years, from the very foundation of the territory The fact that he is the president's son evidently went a great way in the awarding of the public printing contract. The democratic governor helped make the award, and there are all sorts of suppositions as to why and wherefore he did it and how he will be paid for it. So the peace and harmony of Montana republicans is sacrificed for the name of Harrison Republicans there should stand by the paper that fought their battles and built up their party in times of old.

A convention of cattlemen, held at St Louis, studied means to combat the beef "combine" and advocated state legislation forbidding any pool or trust connected with staple products of any sort. A dressed beef trust exists that controls beef and pork and puts up the price to the consumer and keeps down prices to the producer. The price of beef to the producer is hardly enough to pay expenses The beef market is depressed to a very low figure and is controlled at the East, by a combination that should be put down by some means, for it literally takes the bread out of the mouths of the poor, who pay more for beef than they should, and also virtually robs the stockman by being able, by combination, to keep the price of beef too low for any real profit.

If the United States increases in population at the present ratio for fifty years it will, by the middle of the twentieth century, be the greatest power on the face of the earth and the most enlightened, if the common school system is maintained and improved. By that time it may include all the territory from Darien to the North Pole, and truly say, "The whole world is our continent and our race." By that time Europe may change farther yet from imperfection England will have bid good-bye to its monarchy and aristocracy, and republican rule replaces many of the ancient dynasties. The United States of North America can then be powerful enough to be arbiter among nations and assert the right as between them. It will be a great thing if America can keep the world in order and maintain peace among nations.

Some one wants to know who will be to blame if the experiment business of the Agricultural college is to amount to nothing this year. President Arnold says that when the regents didn't seem to know for they didn't do any thing Mr Arnold intimates that there was no money to do any thing with, etc THE OREGONIAN has only given the facts as it could learn them. The people of Oregon want to see such interested in the success of the college and expect results, since the government furnishes $15,000 per annum to work with If this money is put in efficient hands to use, we may expect the desired results. When the regents meet next week, they will doubtless take steps to secure that something is done, and much depends on who is to manage the business of doing it There are some capable and energetic men there

The president chooses his cabinet from the best minds in the nation, and they are poorly paid compared with the importance they possess and the responsibilities they assume. It is a very different matter, living in Washington and entertaining as much as $50,000 men a year, and being a private citizen with the same income. Senators are complaining that their salaries do not properly support them, and yet, common people would imagine themselves in a princely way with their salaries and mileage. The senators who are rich men don't care, of course, but all are not rich They have so much to do as to require clerical aid, and to be of use their secretaries must be accomplished and competent. Every senator should have such aid furnished him, and it would be good policy, as they would be able to accomplish more and better work. It is not possible for public men to live at the national capital as a farmer lives at home, even as he does in any ordinary city home. He is a public man.

Talk about booms! We will show the world a boom when spring opens and the Santiam region is prospect able that will throw Coeur d'Alene in the shade and discount the entire Okanogan filibuster and there will be mines enough there to go around and if any shortage occurs the prospector can soon get on to the waters of the Molalla. There is the Quast Fork where Salem people have developed very rich ore and where there are numerous lodes yet to develop, Rock Point, Fort Hope have been prospected and developed so much, the old district where the White Bull lode was struck in 1886 and abandoned after $100,000 was spent. There is the South Santiam where good quartz was found late last season, and will be apt to make some noise the coming one. The several branches of the Santiam are known to contain ores of gold and silver, as well as lead and other metals, and there is every reason to believe that in time these Cascade mountains so near home will be developed into rich mining ground and employ thousands of miners who will make a home market for Oregon products.

East of the mountains if they have one good, wetting rain their hearts are rejoiced, and they say they are good for a sure crop. West of these same mountains four times, at least, the rain is required to produce the same result. The difference is in the nature of the soil, for here the soil requires excessive moisture, because for all time it has been accustomed to it, and in the dryer climate immemorial usage has accustomed the soil to less moisture. Here it rains and pours and pays particular attention to it, sometimes for four months running, while east of the Cascades one good snow with a few spring showers produces wonderful results. It is true, however, that the most reliable crops are with the western lands that are so well drenched with winter rains. The country to the eastward is healthy during its naturally cool and dry time of winter, while in the Willamette clear and cool winter weather means unusual degree of sickness. During the six weeks of beautiful weather, from the middle of January, the doctors said the season was unusually sickly), and so it has always proved.

Secretary Bayard employed a "literary gent" from New York at the time he was urging congress to publish the letters and documents of Washington's time. To prove to the world that he set a right estimate on the value of these literary remains, he allowed this same "gent" to copy them for publication, and as clerks were plenty, they were set to work to do them. Mr Blaine knew of all this and immediately believed him of his official duties, but he had got his fortune secure in the shape of material for fourteen volumes of most important and interesting history This is called a sort of literary piracy, but a clever literary gent seems to have made a good thing of it, and no man—not even the government—is loser, the clerks of the state department may have done a little more work than usual, but no word has come that any of them have died of overexertion, so it is not clear that Bayard committed any 'scandal,' as they try to make out. On the contrary, he seems to have discovered these musty manuscripts and learned their value, congress did not act on his suggestion and he simply paying its value to the world, If he is to share the profit of publication there would be grounds for a "scandal."

There is solid truth in what the Oregon City Enterprise says as to Portland building up manufacturing enterprises or using means to build up distant places, in preference to making use of the magnificent water power that is near by, at Oregon City But the Enterprise is certainly mistaken in saying Portland "is unwilling to encourage any industry that may desire to establish itself there." The truth is Portland recognizes fully the value of the Willamette falls and would spend a million dollars to exhibit a willingness there if there was at present inducement to do so. Manufactures must come in time, but every country has to grow to them and cannot grow by means of them alone. As yet capital cannot see its way to embark heavily in manufacturing because the population of the Pacific coast can not yet create a demand to support them. The people of Oregon City recognize what manufactures must secure a city for them and naturally desire them. Portland capital will be sure to invest wherever there is safety in so doing, and it sounds more like jealousy and prejudice than good sense to accuse the city of Portland of opposing the prosperity of a near neighbor whose interests are mutual and so closely allied The company that controls the water power and land at the falls offer every possible inducement and the power will be utilized as fast as circumstances justify it.

Justice Hannon, who presides at the Parnell trial is the same genial man who visited Portland in 1885 when Villard's last spike expedition came here Justice Hannon made an address at the Mechanics' Institute and was the pleasantest speaker among the foreigners. That was more agreeable business than trying the Parnell case, which from first to last the affair of the London Times has turned out to be based on fraud and perjury and all the witnesses were unworthy of belief The last one confessed that he spent a year in prison for embezzlement, whereupon the audience audibly smiled, because his predecessors had nearly all been in a similar fix The Times must have supposed it had a case and was most villainously imposed on, but it was little to its credit that it could be so easily deceived. It was a case where "the wish was father to the thought" They sent over to this country to induce one Sheridan to come over there and give evidence He offered to come for the trifling sum of $100,000. The Times has passed for a very astute journal, but this time it was "fooled to the top of its bent."

FARM LIFE.

How to Make it Pleasant for Fathers, Mothers and Children.

The following is a condensed report of an essay read by Mrs. A. E. Shipley at the Farmers' Institute at Hillsboro.

A good book says: "To live in the country and enjoy its pleasures we should love the country; to love the country is to take interest in all that belongs to it—its occupations, its sports, its culture and its improvements." One whose mind is thoroughly awake to the beauties and wonders of nature is prepared to make the country the home of the soul as well as the body. It would seem to be a sad mistake that in school so much time should be spent in learning those things which can be put to no practical use in after life and which are soon forgotten, and often learned, too, at the expense of those studies which would store the mind with useful and available knowledge and be a source of lifelong happiness, especially to those who live in the country

Being comparatively isolated and deprived more or less of the mental stimulus to be derived from eloquent discourses, lectures, concerts etc., and also, in a great measure, of contact with the active world of thought, a person on a farm is often thrown upon their own mental resources. If these are meager —if the mind is stored with little knowledge which gives intelligent interest to the world of nature around—they cannot expect to enjoy the greatest possible pleasure in farm life. Yet no one need think that life with them must be a failure because they have not a finished education. Almost any one can learn enough to made them successful in some desirable line of business and to give them a reasonable amount of intelligence. Very many celebrated men and women have become learned by studying during their spare time on a farm

Any one who would enjoy the greatest amount of pleasure in life must begin very early to perfect in every possible way their own characters, to foster the good and overcome the evil, to root out selfishness and sinfulness and plant instead, unselfishness and uprightness. This course may not help them to accumulate great wealth, but it will help them to lay up treasures 'where moth and rust cannot corrupt." The ambition to found a permanent home which shall be a haven of rest to us and our loved ones is a laudible one The pleasures of such a home are much greater and more ennobling than those which worldly wealth or honor can bestow To make such a home complete love must dwell there. Nothing can compensate for the want of that. Life, at best, is full of trials, but love can make us strong to overcome them or bear them with a sweet and gentle patience which is a source of moral improvement. Home should be the abode of cheerfulness. Charity, too, must dwell there.

Health, also, is essential to a pleasant home, and we are responsible in a great measure for that. Nature's laws are unrelenting active—prohibitory, in fact, as are most laws —and if they are violated, suffering must be the penalty Probably health depends more upon our food and drink than upon all other things put together. Most of us eat too much, and we also eat too much meat for this warm climate There are many excellent preparations of the different kinds of grain which are far more healthful, and palatable, too, than the greasy messes too often found on farmers' tables.

It has been said, and probably with truth, that meat and condiments produce a desire for strong drink. When housewives and cooks realize that the health of the family depends in a great measure upon them there will be less sickness than there is now It has been said that in a few years people will be ashamed to say they are sick; and as the fanaticism of to-day is the wisdom of to-morrow, who knows but such a time may come in the no very distant future. Then strong drink, that greatest of all foes to ill health and happiness, would be done away with. Men could see now that there is no need for intoxicants and no good in them if it were not for their love for them and the strength of habit. Spirits act as a whip to spur up the flagging energies, but they give no strength, and are always followed by consequent depression. Bear prevents the waste matter of the body from passing off, and this makes the person who drinks it fat, but it is an indication of disease instead of health.

No home in which there are disagreeable and unruly children can be a pleasant one consequently they should early be taught obedience, industry, self-control and self-reliance.

Every home should be supplied with plenty of reading matter, good books and plenty of papers

I wish again to emphasize the fact that if we would have the greatest pleasure in life, the working of a home must be the object and not the accumulation of wealth. Those people have most pleasure who enjoy life as they go along—who take an interest in the active world around them and realize their responsibility in life. Debt should be avoided if possible.

Life is but a school in which we are placed that we may prepare for the great hereafter. Is it wise to spend it in getting those things which perish with the using to the exclusion of those which are eternal? If it is true, as some believe, that every impression made upon the brain, whether good or bad, is indelible—photographed there, as it were—how necessary then that we keep ourselves pure as may be, that we shun bad associates, low reading, vile and wicked thoughts and practices, and that parents strive earnestly to help their children maintain their native innocence and purity True, they may come back and obtain pardon after long and wicked wanderings, and the stain may be washed away, but the scars remain

Who knows but these brains covered all over with the impressions, the acts and thoughts of our lives may be the leaves of that book by which we shall be judged when we stand before the bar of God? No pleasure is lasting which is born of sin.

If we would be truly happy we must so live as to have the approval of our own conscience and of our God.

Purity, vitality, and richness are given to the blood by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by druggists.

DOMESTIC FOWLS.

How to Make a Profit by Raising Poultry in Oregon.

An Essay on This Branch of Farm Production Read Before the Farmers' Institute at Hillsboro, by John M. Garrison.

The management of poultry is a business conducted by many intelligent men and women of our time, making it, in many of its departments, both a study and a science

First of all, let me state a fact which should be more generally known among the producing classes Go and search throughout the whole realm of commerce and you will discover that the poultry industry is today the leading one of the country.

According to the statistical record of 1886, the amount of wheat raised in the United States was valued at $488,000,000, that of poultry and eggs, $612 000,000 Thus we see that hampered and hemmed in as the poultry industry has been, still it has produced in dollars and cents one fourth more than what is generally considered to be the leading industry of the age

Now, if this be an admitted fact, and it surely is such, does it not behoove all who are trying to get along well in the world to give the chickens a little better chance?

Can I make a living out of the poultry business? is a question we often hear asked by some one who thinks of starting in the business, yet hesitates, lest there should not be a living in it for a family

I most unhesitatingly and emphatically say yes, to anyone who is capable of making a living at all

Of course success or failure in any business depends on energy good business habits, honesty, and a knowledge of the occupation chosen.

I know of no occupation that I would recommend to any intelligent person of moderate means sooner than that of breeding poultry for a living No one need be discouraged from attempting it simply because he feels that he does not know all about the business before he starts in. Like everything else, it has to be learned, and experience in this case is the very best lesson

The profits in poultry raising is in paying strict attention to the little things Those who are not willing to provide the fowls with the little attentions so necessary for their health and comfort should by no means be entrusted with their care. But it is more than likely that a person who undertakes it as a business will, as a rule, do the best he can. He should be a reader of some poultry journal, and I here say that if he is not willing to subscribe for and be a constant reader of at least one poultry paper he is not deserving of success, for in such a business the beginner, in order to achieve success, must be guided by the experience of others. In this, as well as in any other business, it is well to have a definite object in view. That hens afford a profit, either as fancy stock or from the sale of eggs or flesh, is a well known fact.

The production of eggs in large numbers has become a great and growing industry, requiring much care and thought. Eggs are never unsalable, and the demand for those strictly fresh far exceeds the supply. For years the United States has not been able to produce her own eggs, and as a consequence millions and millions of dozens are yearly imported from Europe.

Now this does not argue that we are in this condition from necessity We needn't buy eggs of Europe, for this is an egg country, and we can produce them if we will.

But this responsibility rests principally upon one class of producers, and that is the farmer. It is true, he is expected to raise wheat, and wheat he will raise or bust, and bust is too often his portion We say the farmer is expected to supply the eggs, because he controls the land and he more than anyone else is calculated to carry on this industry on the least possible expense Most farmers have a few acres of land not used for anything in particular, which could be made very productive if their inclinations would but prompt them to properly manage a flock of fowls. However, we find the reverse to be the case generally. What chickens are kept are allowed to struggle for mere existence; scratch for what they get, roost on fences and in trees; come out of a winter with frozen feet and combs, and, so it may do not furnish a regular supply of eggs and plenty of them, the chicken business doesn't pay Such is the sad example of the treatment that most fowls receive.

A notable instance to the contrary recently came to my notice. A farmer near Eugene keeps about 500 hens of the best laying varieties. He has them upon ground that is not well adapted to the cultivation of grain, but is quite suitable for the raising of poultry His fowls are nice ones, and he likes to care for them At the end of the year his ledger shows a balance of from $1 75 to $2 in favor of each hen. This party stoutly affirmed that his poultry was the best paying property on his farm.

This experience is corroborated by many others who are painstaking enough to give the matter a fair trial.

My opinion is that twenty acres of ground devoted exclusively to the best breeds of poultry can be made to yield a yearly income of at least $1000 over every expense.

This I feel I have not over-stated, as the experience of many of my patrons during the past twelve years fully justify the statement.

Now, the question comes, why don't more people engage in the enterprise? I answer Because of the ignorance on the part of many as to the real merit of our improved breeds, and the aversion among others to the carrying forward of any enterprise that needs careful and constant watching

The opportunity for every farmer to largely increase his revenue each year is at his very door, and the question is, will he make use of this opportunity or not?

For the past twelve years I have been engaged in the breeding of several of the most improved varieties of fowls, and it is an encouraging fact that the interest throughout the whole country in the poultry line increases each year

I, for one, considering it to be the leading industry of the country, shall do all that I can to protect it in all its material interests.

MANAGEMENT OF FARM STOCK.

An Instructive Essay Read by Dr. James Withycombe at the Hillsboro Farmers' Institute.

The subject of general management of farm stock is an elastic one, capable of being extended to great length, hence the author of this essay will endeavor to confine himself to a very brief mention of the most important items connected with the proper management of farm stock.

Farming in this state has to some extent been quite revolutionized in the past few years, which is the inevitable result of the law of supply and demand The advent of manufacturing industries springing up all over our state, and the rapid growth of Portland and other interior towns, has created a home demand for a diversity of agricultural products, the principal of which is probably our domestic stock and their productions, in the shape of meat, butter, milk, wool, etc

Competition has necessarily reduced the margin of profit on many of the products of the farm to a small sum, and the main question is can we produce those articles cheaper, or in other words, is it not possible for us to practice economy, and more thoroughly utilize the means we have at hand, and thereby augment the profits?

Farm buildings are frequently a source of loss to the farmer, owing to their interior arrangements being poorly planned both on sanitary principles and for convenience in feeding and handlingstock.

The total lack of the necessary farm buildings to protect stock from the inclemency of the weather is probably the chief source of loss in farm animals to the average Oregon farmer.

The first requisite is to procure a good breed of stock this does not imply that well bred animals will subsist on less food than scrub animals, but that they will more effectually utilize it, and greater profits will be derived from the feed consumed. After making the selections of improved stock that are calculated to fill the requirements for which they are intended, in order to obtain the maximum amount of profit from them, they must be fed and cared for judiciously.

Proper care of stock, aside from feeding, means to make them comfortable, that is to attend to their wants regularly and sufficiently, so as to keep them from freezing, also furnishing them with warm stables in the winter, with plenty of straw for bedding and shade in the summer

The old saying of "laugh and grow fat" has its counterpart to a certain extent in "comfort means thrift" among stock.

Feed fed to stock that have to stand out in the rain and sleet of winter is largely wasted, as not only does it require extra feed to keep up the animal heat, but quite a loss of feed also results from the animal being in such an uncomfortable condition, that the digestive and assimilative organs are temporarily impaired, hence the animal does not receive the full benefit from the food consumed, nor does the loss end here, as continued exposure frequently results in loss of constitutional vigor, both temporarily and permanently; such constitutional defects are also quite often transmitted to succeeding generations, and rapid deterioration in flocks and herds oftentimes arises from exposure.

HORSES.

Whatever the breed selected, special importance should be placed upon soundness, for the practical value of a horse depends upon the strength and durability of his weakest point.

Comfortable stables should be provided, with good ventilation, but windows or doors intended to be used as ventilators should never be constructed so as to allow the current of air, or draught, to strike the animal. Congestive ailments, terminating fatally, are often met with in stables where horses are exposed to draughts

Good hay and oats is probably the best feed for work horses, but an occasional change of feed is greatly relished and also conducive to good health. Straw, bran, small quantities of oil meal and roots are good for occasional feeding.

When there is a scarcity of hay, good straw can be substituted to an advantage, the amount of nutrition lacking in straw can frequently be supplied cheaper than hay.

Colts should be fed liberally on bran, chopped oats, and hay consisting of clover and other grasses mixed, or feed containing the necessary material for the growth of bone and muscle.

Attention should be paid to horse's feet, especially colts, the feet should be kept in a normal shape; faultiness of gait can often be remedied through the proper training of the feet.

Horses that are worked hard through the day ought to be well groomed at night, it is very refreshing to them, and also causes a determination of blood to the surface, thereby relieving somewhat the engorgement of the internal and more vital organs.

The watering of the horse should precede the feeding, as large quantities of water taken into the stomach soon after feeding is liable to wash quite a portion of the partially digested food out of the stomach, which is a loss of feed, and also occasionally produces a fatal attack of acute indigestion

CATTLE.

A trip through the Willamette valley, during the winter season, will disclose the fact to a careful observer, that our farmers could realize a great deal more out of their cattle, if proper care was bestowed on them

Cattle standing shivering in the cold rains and sleet, means a pecuniary loss to their owner, and its no wonder that 4-year old steers are no larger than 2-year olds ought to be

It should be borne in mind that it takes so much feed to keep up animal heat just in proportion to the surrounding temperature in which the animal is kept

Whenever there is an insufficient amount of feed given to sustain the normal wants of an animal, then a wasting of flesh ensues, and all the feed the animal consumes under such circumstances is practically fed to waste If such treatment is continued very long the whole or nearly all of the past summer's pasturing is also gone for naught.

If, on the other hand, there is a little more feed given than is required to supply the normal wants, then the animal gains in weight and the little additional feed possibly affords a profit on the whole.

In this climate it is unnecessary to build expensive and tight barns for stock; sheds that will keep the animals dry is ordinarily all that is needed.

The practice of burning straw is a very expensive one in our farmers, much valuable feed for stock is wasted, and also a great loss of fertilizers. If all the straw that is annually burned in Oregon was properly utilized in feeding and bedding stock it would prove to be a great source of revenue to the farmers of this state Straw, combined with chopped grain, bran or oatmeat, with some roots or ensilage added, would be a cheap and excellent ration for growing cattle, and with an abundance of straw for bedding, the manure, if judiciously applied to the land, would be worth nearly as much as the extra feed would cost.

SHEEP.

Possibly of all farm stock sheep are the most neglected, and in no other class of farm stock is profitable returns for capital invested so sure as in sheep. The old Spaniards used to say that the sheep's hoof is golden Their reasons, no doubt for thinking so was that they realized the fact that sheep improved the fertility of the soil, as they take less of the fertilizing properties from the soil in proportion to the value of their product than any other species of farm stock.

Many practical wheat farmers think they can keep one sheep to every acre of their wheat land and raise as much wheat as they could without them. If all the wheat land of Oregon yielded from $1 to $2 more than it does at present, it would be quite a sum annually in the farmers' pockets. Of all farm animals sheep are probably the most sensitive to changes. If they are provided with sufficient feed and warm shelter they will thrive under the most unfavorable circumstances in regard to their habits, they will keep in good flesh, and their wool will be strong, even in fiber uniform in size, but just as soon as they are stinted in feed and water they rapidly lose flesh, the wool is checked in growth, the fiber becomes smaller and easily broken, hence the value of the fleece is reduced.

Comfortable sheds should be constructed for sheep, and in the winter season they should be provided with hay and straw, and also a little grain, roots or ensilage added to help keep them in good thriving condition, so that the owner can expect a good, even, strong, healthy lambs in the spring, and later on a good fleece of strong uniform wool.

It is an erroneous idea that sheep require water They consume a great deal, especially in the summer season, and when confined on dry feed in winter.

HOGS.

Oregon probably cannot boast of being a hog country, nevertheless, the hog interest of this state could evidently be made a source of profit to producers by judicious management, the absence of cheap corn it is necessary to substitute something else Probably for corn is roots and milk for growing pigs, with a little chopped grain and milk added.

Hogs are exceedingly sensitive to cold weather, hence it is very important that they provide warm beds for them with plenty of dry straw for bedding

FORTY YEARS A CONSUL.

His Position at Gibraltar as Important as the Fortress Itself.

Troy Press Correspondence of the Globe-Democrat.

The oldest consul in the service has been able to retain his position for forty year in spite of civil wars, administrative changes and factional politics. He is Major Sprague He was born in Massachusetts and appointed from that state. He was first stationed at his post on the rock of Gibraltar controls the entrance to the Mediterranean sea since 1848. He is another who proves to look upon the place as one in which the dignity of the country should be maintained at any cost. His salary is $1500, but the consular officers who have stopped at Gibraltar assure me that they have accepted invitations to dinner at his house, which dinners alone have cost him half his salary at least. He does not seem to care whether he gets a cent or not, and this being the case, his desire is to him simply a means of making himself and his decidedly agreeable to all Americans who visit him with the proper credentials. How this he is eminently successful, and it is no surprise everyone who knows anything about the case if Sprague is asked to withdraw his resignation

Suicide of a Stranger—An Interesting Decision—A Negro Lawyer.

SEATTLE, W. T., March 20.—Tom Ward, late of San Francisco, left town on the 4:07 this evening, and will be in Tacoma a fight with Tom Cleary, who has recently issued several alleged letters in the northwest. Ward wants to fight for $500 a side, or for any amount, when able to, a finish fight. Cleary will be accommodated. Ward to Portland, will train him in the match in case it is made.

A man giving the name of M. M. Murphy was found dead in bed at the Railroad lodging house this morning. At his side was a morphine bottle, and a note addressed to Joseph Burns, in which he bequeathed Burns to wife to his folks of his desire. An inquest was held this afternoon, and a verdict of suicide was returned. Nothing is known here of Murphy. He was apparently about 40 years of age and a laborer.

Chief Justice Boyle rendered an opinion to-day that the city has no right to pass an ordinance restricting interstate commerce. The decision was made on appeal of Mrs. L. B. Tappan, who was fined $25 in the police court last week for soliciting orders for a St. Louis corset house from door to door in Seattle, without securing a license from the city.

Robert O. Lee (negro), was admitted to practice by Judge Burke in chambers to-day. He recently came here from Walla Walla, where he was refused admission to the supreme court, and on his claim to the honor of being the first one of his race to be admitted to practice in the courts of Washington.

It is stated in the most positive every time the true name of the negro known in Seattle for twenty years as Wall are black, and who died February 16, leaving an estate valued at $7,500, was Charles H. Cassell. There proves to be a likely contest among the heirs over the estate.

FIRE AT LA GRANDE.

A Brewery Destroyed With a Loss of About $25,000.

LA GRANDE, Or., March 20.—A fire broke out last night in the brewery of Julius Roesch, of this place, and it was consumed. The loss is estimated at $5,000 on the building and contents, with an insurance of $1,000. The fire was discovered by the Cove building only by hard work on the part of our fire company. This is the first fire since the organization of the company and the opening of the water works, and the presents of a heavy pressure of water on the fire every time the test was realized. This is the second time Mr. Roesch has been burned out in the last two years, and the loss falls heavily. He will immediately rebuild with brick.

CHEHALIS NEWS.

Boring for Water or Coal—Timber Land Contests—Candidates for Postmaster.

CHEHALIS, W. T., March 19.—The Chehalis Business Men's Association decided last night that the most profitable way to spend money for advertising was to induce the home people to do it. In connection it is also sentiment to add that THE OREGONIAN would have more friends here on account of the liberal treatment that paper has accorded the town and county.

North Chehalis is being manifested in a new scheme to furnish water to the city, which is to sink wells in the [illegible] and pump from there into a reservoir. Several fine springs exist on the east side, and it is thought that water can be [illegible] supplied. A boring company has already begun operations at the foot of the hill, but what success it has in search of water, or something more valuable, is not definitely known. There is a strong sentiment in favor of coal in this locality, the general belief being that the owners of it refuse to sell for what they think coal is worth, if any thing, before boring [illegible] on land in town lots.

There is a general forward movement here to improve the streets, and the contractor is ready to meet the property owners more than half way. Petitions for over a mile of new sidewalk were acted on at the last meeting, and a like number will be presented to-night. Last year there was considerable opposition to certain street improvements, but there is none heard of this spring.

Loggers and mill men are again employed. The mills have raised the river so that thousands of logs were run down, and there is a good supply at the mills now.

There were many sarcastic smiles here yesterday over an editorial again in The Times which is absurd and officious in defending the practices by hard work. Without exception the many who have gone from here to Vancouver to make filings have been compelled to pay an unqualified fee of $5 or $10 to each attorney, designated by the printer, to fill out their applications, a work that does not occupy five minutes time. Whether such a charge is illegal or not, it is certainly outrageously exorbitant, as the said attorney has been known to fill out forty applications in a day, receiving therefor not less than $400. Land office officials who open their offices at 9 A. M. and close at 4 P. M., requiring applicants to pay extra fees to get their work done at all, are certainly entitled to no consideration.

A number of Chehalis people are considerably worried over reports of contests being filed on their timber claims. Almost every man in town is holding down a claim and several of them have been notified that their final proof would be obstructed by government agents.

The applicants for the postoffice have dwindled down to two, both basing their claims on their "solid soldier" records, and neither particularly entitled to an appointment to the position. The postoffice fees have almost become large enough to make it a considerable office, in fact the assistant postmaster says he thinks it will be made so at the end of the fiscal year, and the work has become arduous and important. It will require a man of more than ordinary qualifications to do efficient work.

Another large spoken of is the congressional convention to select R. F. Brown, of Nacarina, who was a candidate last fall for the nomination of representative. It is also said that the political bitterness has softened to the point where he will endeavor to send delegates to the convention.

The case of Z. T. Clark against the O. R. & N. Co. for the recovery of $20,000 damages, in consequence of injuries sustained while in the employ of the company, went on trial in Judge Shattuck's court yesterday morning. The complaint alleges that the plaintiff, while in the employ of the company October 3, 1888, as bridge carpenter, met with an accident whereby he sustained injuries that have permanently disabled him. He was engaged in repairing the Ash street dock by raising it with jack screws, when one of the screws slipped and he was thrown from the place where he was working against the timber on the ground, a distance of fifteen feet, with such force as to break both bones of his right forearm and other bones in the wrist, elbow, hip and back. Since that time he has been unable to perform any work, and he considers himself permanently disabled, wherefore he asks for damages in the amount sued for.

The accident is claimed to be due to the defective jack screws furnished by the company, and for this reason criminal negligence is charged.

The jack screws in question were produced in court as evidence. A large number of witnesses were examined, and at the adjournment of court at 5 o'clock yesterday evening the prosecution had not rested their case. Examination of witnesses will be resumed at 9:30 this morning, and the case is felt to occupy the court the greater part of the day.

WILL BE A PROHIBITIONIST TEN DAYS.

Mrs. Riordon, the chronic drunk, again appeared in the police court yesterday afternoon on a charge of drunkenness. When called upon to plead to the charge, she replied with great hauteur: "Not guilty, your honor. You know that I never put the court to any trouble to prove the charge when I am guilty, but in this case I am innocent." Being asked whether she desired to reform, she replied that she guessed she would have to as long as she is kept in jail. From the testimony of the police officers it appeared that she was under the influence of liquor, if not technically drunk, and the court kindly sent her to jail for ten days to sober up in.

HE DID NOT APPEAR.

Mention was made in these columns yesterday of the issuance of a warrant for the arrest of one Chung Leouw, on a charge of attempting to outrage Mrs. Wong Sing, a Chinese widow. The latter was to the effect that time under arrest on a charge of keeping a disreputable house, Leouw being the complainant. When Mrs. Sing's case was called for trial Leouw was not on hand, and the case was dismissed. Every effort was made to find the missing witness, both as a witness and a prisoner, but to no avail, he having evidently left town to evade being arrested for assaulting Mrs. Sing.

LIENS ON THE OREGONIAN RAILWAY.

On petition of C. M. Scott, receiver of the narrow gauge road, accompanied by a schedule of the unsecured debts against the road for labor and materials used in operating it, amounting to $69,761 55, Judge Deady has rendered a decree that these claims shall be a lien upon the road in favor of the persons to whom they are payable, or their assigns, equal in tenor and effect to the receiver's certificates heretofore issued by orders of the court, provided it appear that such debts were actually incurred by the receiver and have never been paid.

CHINESE MURDERERS TO BE SENTENCED.

Ah Sid, attorney for the cases of Chee Song, convicted of murder in the first degree, and Pong Long Dick, convicted of murder in the second degree, have united to make a motion for a new trial, or the will of counsel in behalf of their clients, although they have been sentenced to three to suffer such proceedings. District Attorney Sinnott yesterday morning asked Judge Stearns to set a day for sentence. The court accordingly will hear the motion for a new trial at 10 o'clock on the time for sentencing the two convicted Chinamen.

FOREIGN COURT.

The following cases were disposed of in the police court yesterday afternoon: Thomas Devine, drunk, five days; Nicholas Smith, same, $5; James Maloney, same, twenty days; Frank Williams, vagrant, discharged; George Bennett, also charged with vagrancy, had hearing in his case continued until this afternoon.

James Roach, the man who was arrested some time ago for attempted burglary and was subsequently discharged by the grand jury, was fined $10 for roaming the streets after midnight.

ANOTHER DIVORCE SUIT.

Sarah E. Carnac yesterday afternoon commenced divorce proceedings in Judge Stearns's court against her husband, John Carnac, on the ground of desertion and failure to support. The plaintiff alleges that she was wedded to her liege lord in Missouri on August 15, 1870, and that ten years thereafter he deserted her and her three children, the fruit of the marriage. The plaintiff also asks for the custody of her three children.

APPEAL CASE TO BE SET FOR TRIAL.

The county court yesterday issued a marriage license to Peter Boonis and Eva E. Prescott, and Henry B. Schmeer and Minnie M. Hamilton.

THE BOARD OF IMMIGRATION.

A Special Meeting Held Yesterday — Raising Funds for This Year's Work.

The Board of Immigration held a special meeting at their rooms, No. 10 Ash street, yesterday afternoon, Directors C. H. Dodd, H. W. Corbett, Mills G. Hughes, F. K. Arnold and T. A. Wood being present.

Communications being first in order, the following were read: From the Co-operative Press Association of Chicago, soliciting an advertisement and giving a rate of $300 for a nine-line notice in 100 interior papers. On motion of Mr. Hughes the proposition was accepted and $300 appropriated for the purpose.

From the Michigan Central and Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad companies, soliciting advertisements for their time tables; declined.

From George D. Chevrier, of Lincoln, Ill., offering to distribute the board's printed matter for $6 per month and expenses; declined.

From J. K. Shepard, relative to work in San Francisco; placed on file.

From the American District Telegraph Companies in Stark and Fresno, giving their rates for distributing printed matter. On motion of Mr. Hughes, the board decided to distribute 2500 pieces of literature a day for six months in both towns.

The bill of H. J. Smith & Co., of Chicago, for a one-page advertisement in Crofutt's Tours for $100, ordered paid. The bill of Swope & Taylor, for $30, was also ordered paid.

The matter of canvassing for funds for this year's work was then discussed. Messrs. Hughes and Dodd, who have been soliciting, reported having secured nineteen $50 monthly subscriptions with the prospects of six or seven more of the same amount. After some little discussion it was decided to divide the city into three districts, each district to be thoroughly canvassed. Messrs. Dodd and Oliphant were assigned that part of the city north of Oak street; Messrs. Hughes and Arnold, from Oak to Salmon, and Mr. Wood from Salmon south.

There being no other matters of importance on hand an adjournment was taken.

CHARGED WITH GRAND LARCENY.

What Said Back Has to Say About Eight Chinamen to Whom He Advanced Sums of Money.

Said Back, the well-known Chinese merchant and labor contractor, swore out eight warrants in Justice Tuttle's court yesterday against as many of his countrymen charging them with grand larceny.

Said Back was seen at his office by a reporter last evening to whom he made the following explanation of the transactions leading to the complaints being issued:

"During the early part of last month I hired four Chinamen, Lai Dick, Hoar Koung, Lee Sung and Low Fong, to work in an Alaskan salmon cannery, advancing them $36, $40, $38 58 and $20 respectively with which to prepare themselves for the trip. They were to take a steamer sailing for San Francisco on the 28th of the month to re-ship for Alaska, but from the time they received their advance money until to-day, I have not seen the men, although I am told they are still around the streets of Portland. Their intentions are to beat me out of the money, but if caught I will make it very warm for them.

"On the 18th inst., continued Said Back, I hired Soo Wong, Young Hin Dow, Chung Fook and Lee Wong to go to work on the following day on section hands on the O. & C. railroad. I advanced them sums ranging from $30 to $35 apiece, telling them to come around to my store on Tuesday at 9:30 o'clock, prepared to take the 4 o'clock train for the field of their labors. They did not put in an appearance at the time agreed upon, but have been seen by men in my employ around the gambling houses, evidently spending their ill-gotten money."

The last four men mentioned evidently intend imitating the men who got the best of Sold Back last month, but if they think that the same dodge can be played on the Front street merchant more than once, they are very badly mistaken. Constable Simmons was busily engaged last evening searching Chinatown for the men, for whose arrest he carried warrants.

JOSEPH MORIN DISCHARGED.

He Had an Examination Yesterday—Cody's Brutal Assault Properly Characterized.

Joseph Morin, who fired five shots at Al Cody, a runner in the employ of the same house, had a hearing in the police court yesterday afternoon on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

In anticipation of an examination in this case the court room was crowded with idle and curious spectators.

Morin being placed on the stand, told substantially the same story of the encounter with Cody last Saturday night as appeared in THE OREGONIAN on the following morning. He related the circumstances leading up to the fight, and gave a graphic description of the bloody tussle with his formidable antagonist.

"When Cody had me down," he said, "with his teeth sunk in my lower lip, I yelled for him to let go. 'For G—d sake, Cody, says I, 'let go and don't disfigure me for life.' I appealed to the crowd who were standing about me, but not one of them came to my rescue in response to my appeal. Some one was about to assist me and pull Cody off, when Arthur Perkins interposed by saying, 'Let them fight it out.'

When I was finally let go with my face beaten up, my finger bitten, and I felt that my lip was bit off, I rushed for my revolver and opened fire on Cody. I shot to kill and am only sorry that I did not kill him. I would do the same again under similar circumstances."

Cody, as was expected he would, denied that he mauled and disfigured Morin by biting him. He admitted that he struck him with his fist, but further than that he would not commit himself.

Dr. Rand, who attended the injuries of Morin when he was brought to the police station, testified regarding the nature of the man's wounds. He gave it as his opinion that the injuries are such as might be caused by the bite of a man.

Several other witnesses were sworn, but their testimony threw little additional light on the merits of the case.

The state having waived the opening argument, ex-Governor Woods, for the defense, made an impassioned and eloquent appeal on behalf of his client. He characterized the crime committed by Cody as one of the most inhuman, shameless and atrocious that can be committed, and the perpetrator of that crime he painted in no very feeble terms, and denounced him as being unworthy the name of man. ("Death" he said, "would be preferable —yes, ten thousand times—than to be maimed and disfigured for life and go forth in the world no longer the image in which God Almighty created him. Morin was justified in shooting as Cody and the only regret of the community can be that the bullet failed of its mark. He was morally justified and justified before God and humanity."

District Attorney Sinnott replied to this argument in terms equally as denunciatory of the crime perpetrated by Cody as did counsel for the defense.

"It was one of the most revolting and dastardly crimes ever committed by any criminal while I have been practising in this court," said he, "in my inner heart," said he, "I believe that Morin was morally justified in shooting at his adversary and while I myself regret that the bullets did not hit the mark, I am not at liberty to say so. Sympathy and sentiment, however, can cut no figure in law and questions of fact."

Here the district attorney raised the point of admissible precedents. This defendant admits that he fired the shots and then he shot him, and, making this admission, I ask that he be held to answer to the grand jury. I believe that they would acquit him, and I believe the petit jury would, but I only ask this as a matter of form, as that is the dangerous precedent to be established by this court."

The court briefly reviewed the testimony and then discharged the defendant. The circumstances of this case be considered of such a nature as to justify the acts of Morin.

At the adjournment of court Morin received the congratulations of attorneys, friends and strangers alike.

PURSUED BY AN IRATE HUSBAND.

Exciting Chase After Two Men Who Insulted a Woman—One Is Captured and Gets Fined.

As Mrs. W. M. Woodall, accompanied by Miss Frances Taylor, was returning to her home on Third and Columbia streets, about 9 o'clock Tuesday evening, two strange men accosted them on First street near Jefferson and began to make ungentlemanly remarks to them. The first remarks were passed in silence, but when the men became more insolent in pressing recognition, the ladies told them to mind their own business or there would be trouble.

No attention was paid to this warning and the men even went so far as to attempt to take hold of the arms of the women. This last impertinence so frightened them that they started to run. The two men also turned the corner on Columbia street and pursued the women to the door-step of Mrs. Woodall.

When Mrs. Woodall got into the house her husband had already retired. She, however, lost no time in supplying him of her very unpleasant experience, and he at once started in pursuit of the men. The men were still near the gate when Mr. Woodall appeared at the door and the exciting chase began. One of the men escaped on a side street, while Mr. Woodall, in hot pursuit of the other, continued the mad race down Columbia street towards First.

Upon reaching First street, the pursued man dodged into a saloon, while the enraged husband, in his right mind, and bent on vengeance, started to find pickup on the way, followed closely by the crowd of men who were gathered about the bar were so frightened by the flying spectre-like men that some of them dropped their glasses and lost their appetite. The saloon-keeper, with the instincts of a Trojan warrior, grabbed Mr. Woodall and unceremoniously threw him out of the back door, while the same summary movement was performed with the man whom Woodall was pursuing, only the latter was ejected through the front entrance.

Mr. Woodall, not to be outdone by the action of the irate saloon-keeper, ran around the saloon from the rear end to the front, and got there just in time to catch the man he had so vigorously pursued.

Officer Smith appeared on the scene immediately after and took the man to the city jail, while Mr. Woodall retraced his steps to his home to tell his wife of the capture.

The man, who gave his name as Alex Loudon, and claimed to be a barber, working in a Washington street shop, had an examination in the police court yesterday afternoon. He denied having made any improper remarks to the ladies, but admitted that his companion did. The name of this companion he did not know, for he claimed the man was only a casual acquaintance. As the women, however, positively identified Loudon as the man who accosted them and took improper liberties in addressing them, the court did not place much reliance in his statements. Loudon was found guilty and fined $25.

ACCUSED OF CRIMINAL ASSAULT.

The Arrest of Stephen Conkright—Motive Claimed To Be Malicious.

Stephen Conkright, a carpenter, was yesterday arrested on a warrant issued from Justice Phelan's court on a charge of assaulting Mollie Salzinger. J. G. Salzinger, father of the girl, who swore out the complaint, alleges that on the 1st of March the defendant grabbed the girl by the shoulders and cruelly beat her, and that she was only rescued by the timely interference of other persons.

The prevailing opinion is that the charge against Conkright is prompted by malice on the part of Salzinger, who does not bear an over savory record in judicial circles. The defendant in this case is described as a hard-working carpenter, who has never had any trouble with any of the neighbors, nor has he ever had any litigation in court. The charge preferred against him was a complete surprise to him. It was his wife supplied the Boys' and Girls' Aid Society of the brutal treatment the girl received at the hands of her drunken father, and was thus instrumental in having her sent to her cousin in San Francisco, out of reach of his inhuman persecution.

The case will be looked into by Justice Phelan to-morrow. In the meantime the defendant is out on $200 bonds.

BACK FROM COEUR D'ALENE.

Return of Mr. DeLashmutt—Very Encouraging Prospects Reported.

Mayor DeLashmutt arrived home yesterday from Coeur d'Alene. He says the railroad company has moved off all the ores which accumulated during the winter. Mining men are, however, slow in starting up, on account of high rates for freight and treatment of ores, and none of them are running their concentrators to their full capacity. It costs $28 per ton for freight and treatment, which is more than the ores of any other district yield on an average.

The district extends 250 miles north and south and is about 100 miles in width and gets bigger every day. There are more good mines than were ever found in any other district on the coast and it is bound to be the greatest mining country in America.

Work is being pushed on the O. R. & N. Co.'s road across the reservation. The winter is broken, the snow nearly gone and the weather fine.

During his trip Mr. DeLashmutt, with others, purchased the California mine, two and a half miles from Wallace, for $40,000.

A large amount of development work has been done on the mine and there are 600 tons of ore on the dump, which will be shipped in about fifteen days.

AUCTION SALE TO-DAY.

UNPRECEDENTED.

Fully 5000 People in Attendance—Fourth Semi-Annual Opening.

Messrs. Prager Brothers, of the Farmers' and Mechanics' Store, Give a Grand Reception to Their Many Friends and Patrons Last Night.

The simple announcement in the columns of THE OREGONIAN yesterday morning that Messrs. Prager Brothers of the Farmers' and Mechanics' store would give their grand spring opening last evening had the effect of drawing an immense concourse of people to the First street entrance of the firm long before the time announced for the opening, all ready and anxious to participate in the festivities of the evening. The man, woman or child who failed to attend this opening last evening missed a treat that seldom falls to the lot of the resident of Portland. It is needless to say that not a single person who entered the doors went away from the immense establishment of the Farmers' and Mechanics' store last night disappointed, and no one departed who did not stand ready to admit that he had seen more of interest in this single store than he had dared to hope to see in all other stores of Portland combined.

It was some four years ago that Messrs. Prager Brothers re-established their business in Portland, the firm at the time securing a lease on the building, 55x60 feet in dimensions, at the southeast corner of First and Taylor streets. By the strictest attention to business, by a course of honest and fair treatment to all, and by keeping ever abreast of the times, this firm now occupies a position in the front rank of the large and successful business houses of the Northwest, and they further enjoy the distinction of being one of the largest houses on the coast, devoted to the handling of general merchandise, and perhaps the largest exclusive retail establishment of the kind west of Minneapolis. They have been forced to increase their quarters from time to time until to-day they occupy the entire half block at the southeast corner of Taylor and First streets (200x100 feet), besides the large storeroom, 25x50 feet in dimensions, devoted entirely to the storing of their immense reserve stock. They now carry constantly a quarter of a million stock of goods. The opening last night was the fourth of the grand semi-annual openings of the firm, and it goes without saying that the last was the most successful by far of the series.

Early in the evening, at least half an hour previous to the advertised time for the throwing open of the doors, a vast crowd, variously estimated at from one to two thousand people, had congregated at the First street entrance of the firm. These were old time patrons and friends of the Prager Brothers, who had full confidence in any promise that the firm might make to their constituents. Promptly at the time advertised the massive doors of the establishment were thrown open, and simultaneously the strains of Professor Parsons's orchestra greeted the ears of the anxious throng. What a sight met the view of the fortunate ones.

The vast crowd entered the millinery department and were cordially received by Mr. B. J. Forbes, the general manager, assisted by Mr. S. C. Armitage, his assistant, Mrs. H. M. Prager, Miss Ida Silverman and Mr. Sam Solomon, in charge of this department. Just inside of the main entrance a canopy of artificial flowers had been erected under the personal supervision of Mr. Solomon, and so perfect was the imitation carried out that the fragrance of the real flowers seemed to fill the entire room. What a display of bonnets and hats met the critical eyes of the ladies. These were all made under the watchful eyes of Miss Silverman, and reflected great credit on the skill of the lady. "What a beauty of a hat!" said one lady, and "What a darling of a hat," quickly added another. Even the sterner sex showed something of an interest as the versatile Miss Silverman dwelt at length on the merits of this or that particular piece of headwear. How was one little hat that was the envy of all the ladies, and to be told that "it only cost the modest sum of $25 added not a little to the general interest that was taken in it. There is another," added Miss Silverman, that is very pretty season, and all the fair ones added in chorus "why it is simply pastoution." It was a veritable bouquet in itself, and chirped in a lady from New York, who was present, "that hat would be the envy of every lady of Broadway."

It is but just to Miss Silverman in this connection to say that she has but recently arrived from New York direct and further that she comes to assume full charge of the millinery department of Farmers' and Mechanic's. The lady was for a number of years in charge of James G. Johnson & Co.'s parlors in New York, who, by the way, are the largest wholesale millinery dealers in the United States. It is Miss Silverman's intention to give her undivided attention to the trimming of all hats that leave her rooms here, and it can be said that the ladies of Portland, and for that matter, of the entire Northwest, are to be congratulated on having at their disposal the services of so talented an artist as Miss Silverman.

It was, of course, in this department that the main interest of the ladies present centered, and in deference to the fair sex it will be here stated that this was the most interesting part of the house, but, as Mr. Forbes jocosely said, "the crowd must be kept moving" and a little pushing and much urging forced them along to the dress goods department in charge of Mr. J. F. D. Wedick, passing through this department the crowd merged into the fancy goods department where they were met by Mr. Isadore Solomon, the urbane manager. From the latter room the vast concourse poured into the domestic department, presided over by W. H. Peart. Off from this room was the cloak and lace curtain alcove, where were displayed some of the finest goods ever brought to the coast. Mr. Sol. Jacobs did a land office business in this department, and at last accounts he had not yet entertained all the people as they entered the boot and shoe room. It was in this room that the orchestra of Professor Parsons was located, and never did they play to better advantage. The acoustic properties of the entire building were perfect, and whether it was the charming overture or the slow waltz, those present entered with a zest into its enjoyment. The clothing and furnishing department, presided over by the genial H. M. Prager himself, ably assisted by Mr. Max Dreyer and Mr. Summers, was the last visited, and it was from this room that the exit was made. This department has just been entirely remodelled and enlarged throughout, over $200 having been spent in this work during the last four weeks. The fine display of goods here was favorably commented on by all present, and it will perhaps be gratifying to the visitors last night to be assured that this stock is second to none in the city. All the departments passed through the same care was manifestable in the arrangement and display, and too much praise cannot be bestowed on the heads of these several departments, as well as on their large staff of assistants.

It is perhaps due to Mr. Louis Prager, the senior member of the firm and the head of the Portland house, as well as to Mr. B. J. Forbes, the general manager, to say that both gentlemen were indefatigable in their efforts to make their friends and patrons feel entirely at home. Not a single thing that tended in the least to the comfort or interest of those present seemed lacking, and no one went home feeling in the least slighted. The fourth grand opening of the Farmers' and Mechanics' was a success in every particular, and it will long be remembered by the Portland public as the most successful in the history of the city, if not of the coast.

THE RIVER AND THE SHORE.

Items Gathered Among the Docks, River Craft and Ships.

The steam schooner Wallula came into port, unloaded a cargo of wood and left for Cathlamet yesterday.

The steamer State of California sailed at 12 o'clock last night for San Francisco, with a general cargo amounting to about 1200 tons.

United States inspectors of steam vessels Ferguson and McDermott left yesterday morning for Yaquina bay, where they will inspect the steamer Favorite.

The German bark Sussex was towed from Columbia dock to the foot of E street yesterday, where she will discharge a large quantity of piston consigned to the Willamette Iron Works.

The steamer Idaho arrived at Astoria at 2:30 o'clock yesterday with a cargo of coal consigned to the Oregon Improvement Company. It is not definitely known whether the Idaho will discharge at Astoria or come on to this city.

The bark Anamba, which made a rattling passage of 108 days from this port, had to lighter her cargo at Westport, and one of the barges struck a sand bar in the Westport river, and listed over until a portion of the cargo was damaged.—Astoria Pioneer.

The steamer Alliance, which has been at Astoria for a couple of days shipping a new propeller for the one broken near Oak Point, last Saturday was due at her dock, foot of C street at 12 o'clock last night. She is announced to sail at 5 o'clock this evening with a full general cargo for Gray's harbor.

The steamer Oregon will leave her dock at San Francisco at 10 o'clock this morning for Portland. She was not to have sailed until to-morrow, but owing to the delay caused by the tie up of the Columbia, she will leave a day earlier. She will have just about time enough to unload and load before she leaves.

The latest news from San Francisco is to the effect that the steamer Columbia is still in quarantine notwithstanding the private dispatch received in this city Tuesday to the effect that there was absolutely no smallpox on board the steamer. The dispatch referred to, which was published in these columns yesterday, was a great relief to those who had friends and relatives on board the vessel, they not knowing to what form the disease was, or whether all the passengers were afflicted or not. Owing to the fact that the passengers refuse to leave the steamer, the company will endeavor to induce the health authorities to release the vessel from quarantine, which will probably be done in a day or so.

FOR REDUCTION OF TOLL RATES.

Petitioners, Ferry Company and Bridge Company Represented in Court—Another Continuance Granted.

Yesterday morning was the time set for the hearing of arguments in the matter of reducing toll rates on the Stark street ferry and Morrison street bridge, a petition for this reduction having been sent to the county court some time ago. When Judge Catlin called the court to order, a few minutes past 10 o'clock, the courtroom was filled with spectators, most of whom were residents of East Portland and interested in low ferry rates.

Mr. H. D. Bingham, representing the Stark Street Ferry Company, asked for a continuance of two or three days, in order to give Mr. Logan, one of the principal stockholders, who is absent in San Francisco, time to get back and present his case.

Deputy District Attorney J. F. Hall, of East Portland, who represents the petitioners, did not see what could be gained in any further delay. "Besides," he continued, "I think that the Stark Street Ferry Company is ably represented by their attorney, and the matter might just as well be submitted to the court at this time."

P. L. Willis, on behalf of the bridge company, suggested that the application of petitioners be made in writing, and that specific charges be stated. "It is not fair," said he, "for the petitioners desire a reduction of toll for vehicles, for freight, for passengers, or for all three. Since the motion for a reduction originated with the petitioners I think it proper that they should state specific charges.

Judge Catlin—"In my opinion the court has jurisdiction to act upon its own motion and can prepare a schedule of rates without the application of petitioners."

No one seemed to dispute the right of the court to act in the matter independent of any petition. "The petitioners," said Mr. Hall, "only ask that the rates be lowered, and do not presume to dictate to the court or to the company what those rates should be. There is no notice required or formal petition necessary. We are here with evidence and affidavits showing the amount of traffic, income from the same, etc., and desire to submit our testimony to the court."

Mr. Willis again made the same objection to this method of procedure by insisting that the motion of petitioners is too general, and that they should say more definitely what they want and why they want it, and thereby give the companies opportunity to reply.

Mr. Bingham was of the same opinion. He believed that if the petitioner were to make a showing by affidavits the ferry company should be given the same privilege. The best way to do this is to produce the books of the company and as Mr. Logan has charge of these, no such representation could be made.

The court, seeing that time was only being occupied in useless argument, and, for the purpose of giving all parties opportunity to make a satisfactory representation either with books or affidavits, continued hearing until next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

PORTLAND, THURSDAY, MARCH 21.

AN UNPROFITABLE PURSUIT.

It is safe to say that office-seeking is the most unprofitable pursuit in the world. When it succeeds, as it rarely does for the short or long run, and more in four or five hundred times where it miserably fails, the fact becomes apparent how really profitless it is.

From all parts of the country great numbers have come to Washington to press for office. Even a majority of Presidents have said positively in the beginning that they would be unembarrassed. But there is no probability that a single man has left, and scarcely more of the remaining members will, for, also. Other persons, who have not come at home to devote all their time to office for preservation, to the president, with various wiles; and even those who may succeed might do better in private occupations.

Take it all in all, we think office-holding the most demoralizing pursuit in the world. After a man has held public position for a number of years he is generally unfitted for quite disqualified for private endeavor. He loses his independence and knack of doing things for himself. When he gets out of office, as he surely will in time, he is quite likely to do nothing but sit round and wait for office to come to him again. And the chances are many that it will not come.

In many of our public offices good ability and special knowledge are required, but there is no case in which equal ability and equal knowledge, if employed in private pursuits, would not secure personal independence to him who might exert them. It is a common observation that dependence on office, in a great majority of cases, leads to poverty and helplessness. There is literally nothing in it. What proportion of persons among us are looking towards office with longing eyes, can only be conjectured; but the number certainly is large. Yet, in fact, there are extremely few offices in our state, when the president has power to fill, that are worth taking by men ready to fill them well. Talent, capacity, fidelity, are qualities that deserve better rewards, and would obtain them if their possessors would only rely on the resources they have within themselves, and not be content with waiting, in dependence, on the office that still seldom or never come.

Most men of character and ability will usually have business of their own that they cannot afford to leave for the uncertain tenure of office. There are exceptions, of course, and these exceptions will always be found sufficient to fill the positions and the government will not need to go begging for candidates for important positions, but the men will hold great or are strange that very good men have their own affairs to attend to, and the class of position-worthies who are always clamoring for office are men who have not the ability to look up business for themselves, but imagine they are competent to run the affairs of the nation. There may have been a time when able business men were chosen to serve the interest by consent to lay down their private affairs to undertake office as a public duty. The honorable state of things is gone by long ago never to return. The theory that office is a public trust has given place to another that office is a means of service. There are crowds of applicants for every place and they claim that they have earned place by political active services.

The seeking for office destroys capacity with many, and the longer it goes it kills hallucination usually becomes useless for life's ordinary duties. There are men whose character and standing are worth much to the party they belong to, but those are not often the men who become chronic office-seekers. The policy of the Cleveland party was to reward party workers and to do this they were obliged to go south, since the most reliable democrats are found there, so we have seen the territories officered with ex-confederates and the consular and diplomatic service has been turned over to southern men.

Harrison is pursuing a policy in his appointments that gives satisfaction to good citizens, and it is to be hoped he can bring about a reasonable civil service reform that can become a national policy. The office seeker, as such, deserves no recognition. The rule should be enforced that office seeks the man and not the man the office. The craze for office is demoralizing. There should be no more competition or emolument in public service than in private endeavors pay for equally important service. The great railroad system, the great new papers, and the banks and business houses that lead in trade, recognize personal value and bid often high salaries for individual worth. They generally get their money's worth. That should be the national policy as well.

A HOME OF THEIR OWN.

The Woman's Boarding Home association by the Portland Women's Union is to-day, has passed beyond the experimental stage, although the society is unincorporated it is less than two years old and may already be said to have achieved success. Its usefulness has been demonstrated beyond a doubt. The question now is not whether there is a demand for such an institution, or how shall we supply the constantly increasing demand of honorable, industrious working women, for home privileges, at rates which their wages enable them to pay, without hardship? Intelligent effort is being made to answer the question satisfactorily, with every prospect of commercial success. Woman-like, the women who control the matter have a home of their own. That is to say, they are not in for the money that is in it, but because it is a benevolent one. This desire has met already with liberal response from generous citizens, and there is no doubt but it will in due time be realized.

The institution though still in its infancy, is not unpopular. Its most successful element is its economy. It is not within every inmate to pay her way according to her ability to do so. It adopts a rule not so much to the words as to the spirit of its inmates, by giving them both protection and home comforts at rates which they can afford to pay. It will succeed of course. Practical endeavor meets every where, and in all lines a generous fruitage of usefulness.

EXTREME MEASURES PROPOSED.

The political granger evidently has his eye on Minnesota, intent upon converting it into a veritable paradise for himself and his impracticable brethren. His persistent efforts have resulted in bringing before the legislature of that state a bill fixing an arbitrary schedule of rates on grain and its manufactured products, which the railroads of that state must observe or go out of business. The penalty for a violation of the rates fixed is a fine of from $1000 to $5000, and a violation of the scale is per force, in of forfeiture of their franchises, charters and corporate rights, which amounts to a confiscation of the property of the road. In case any road derives its charter and franchises from the state, these shall be forfeited, and if incorporated, and is incorporated under the laws of another state, it shall be prevented from doing business in the state of Minnesota.

Now the corporation horse is notably a stubborn, as well as a greedy animal. The political granger may, after much worry, lead the creature to the water, but thus far all efforts to make him drink have been futile. It is only when a state is anxious to construct railways within its limits and to return to the primitive schooner era in the matter of transporting freights that it can afford to pass such a law as this. It is reasonably safe to say that Minnesota has not yet reached this stage of its history and development. The agricultural interests of the state have no doubt suffered in common with those of other sections of the Northwest from the present depressed freight tariffs. But even this is not an exception, though heavy but not beyond paralyzing, as the remarkable growth and almost phenomenal prosperity of the state will attest. A cut up of the transportation business certainly would be and significant. It would be the greatest calamity. Of course there is nothing to be expected from such a law. It is extremely doubtful to not make it a legislative impossibility, they will consent to it as an easy path to popular judgment. The main object of the introduction of such a bill is to make it talked about, so to speak, and to impress the country that chafes under excessive freight rates and rebates with the effort that will compel the attention to their grievances.

It is to be hoped that Oregon office-seekers above mentioned for various to the party are not likely to be recognized for a week or two — perhaps longer — will not grow discouraged; go to work, or do anything else desperate or unusual. There is just be some consolation and even hope for them in the fact that 70,000 canvassers will be given employment next year.

With the Grant monument not yet commenced, the people of New York have the effrontery to talk of erecting a monument to Emerson. Talk is cheap, but unfortunately for the credit of the great metropolis, it takes money to build monuments.

before May. It is seldom indeed, that a season has been so favorable for rings or corners, as the present one The flour markets in this country have not been very active of late owing to the dullness in wheat There is moreover a general indisposition to buy new American flours owing to their defective quality and the trade in Hungarian has increased in consequence

The Merchandise Market

The April weather sunshine and all signs of the past week have had a beneficial effect on all branches of trade The farmers and small fruit growers are jubilant and predict wonderful crops Sugars have been on the jump again and on Saturday advanced ½c coppers and ½c on whites The New York Shipping List of recent date has the following on the condition of trade

There has been further improvement in the distributive movement of trade reports from nearly all important centres reflecting an increase in demand for supplies and in all lines a hopeful sentiment does not reflect a corresponding improvement and the tone of the primary market is not yet altogether satisfactory The failure of the Reading Railroad Company which is one of the largest consumers in the country has had an unsettling influence although it is quite true the insolvency is not due directly to recent events and the panic that passed over the country in fall might with more disastrous results for the reason that all the available supply is held by the syndicate, has very much impaired confidence in that gigantic speculative deal and impaired the disposition to move with freedom for reserve and account The failure of the stock market to develop any aggressive movement on the bull side, notwithstanding the favorable entertainment of the railroad situation has been a further cause for hesitation to the investment and speculative market The unparalleled failure of the principal produce markets that has scarcely been neutralized by the improvement in provisions and lard. Political affairs retain control for the present to keep the attention of business men, and the close of the congressional session removes that disturbing factor from the field of commercial activity and there does not seem to be any feeling of apprehension with reference to the future or fear of impending disaster Conservatism is nevertheless the dominant feature in trade as well as speculation, which is probably due to the rather slender margin of profit that is available in almost every direction The dry goods market has been fairly active and steady with jobbers reporting a good and reasonable distributing demand and a steady absorption of supplies from manufacturers The demand has been chiefly for light fabrics for spring and summer wear and there is the dullness of heavy woolens and depressed feeling for wool There has been no real change in the general condition of the iron and steel industry Prices for all kinds of crude and finished material are so low that there is no room for any further decline but the demand does not exist and the offerings are sufficiently liberal to prevent the obtaining of any advance in prices while confidence has been shaken to some extent by the leading embarrassment Until confidence is more likely to have a bearing upon the future of the iron industry and the routine of production and an increased demand for all kinds of material for railroad construction and equipment The hardening tendency of the value of sugar and coffee has been the feature of the grocery market The bullish sentiment of the sugar market in all parts of the world has induced refiners to replenish their stocks more freely, with the result of establishing a prosperous appearance Every dealing of importance taken place in the statistical position of the world's supply during the past two months a prospect very much darkened, having been turned into real security, and there is every probability that the yield of the most important producing countries will be very much less than had been expected The visible of coffee has been moving visibly upward—not, however, because of any material change in the statistical position of supplies but on account of the short selling bull sentiment that has prevailed, resulting in an active covering of the short interest A good many conservative men take the position whether present conditions warrant the prices now current Molasses has stiffened up with the advance in sugar In the rural districts the disturbed condition of copper has absorbed the attention of the trade and the effect of recent events will be watched for with keen interest The bullish claim that the syndicate has strengthened its position, by the locking up which prices have dropped without finding any recovery would not seem to warrant that opinion The coal market has ruled dull and a very unsettled feeling seems to prevail on account of the week's corporate of supplies The mounting stocks of anthracite is the prospect that further great curtailment of consumption while rumor has foreshadowed a reduction in card rates next week

Experience of Two Men Who Waylaid a Woman—One Is Captured and Gets Fined.

As the W. M. Woods accompanied by Miss Fannie Jones was strolling down Fourth street, Third and Couch streets, about 9 o'clock Tuesday evening two female men accosted them on the street near Jefferson and began to make improper remarks to them. The first remarks were passed in silence but when the men became more insolent in pressing recognition he ladies told them to mind their own business or there would be trouble.

Such attention was paid to the warning and the men went so far as to attempt to take hold of the ladies. This was more than Mr. Woods, who is a powerful man, could stand, and he struck one of the men a blow in the face. The two men also turned on Mr. Woods and struck at him with the intent of doing him bodily injury. When the fighting commenced Miss Jones ran down Jefferson street and Mr. Woods, who was getting the best of the fight, followed after. The men, seeing that they were getting the worst of it, also turned and ran down Jefferson street. Mr. Woods, who is a powerful man, soon overtook one of the men and struck him a blow in the back of the head, which sent him sprawling to the sidewalk. The other man, seeing that his companion was getting the worst of it, turned and struck Mr. Woods a blow in the face. Mr. Woods then turned on the second man and struck him a blow in the face, which sent him sprawling to the sidewalk. The first man, seeing that his companion was getting the worst of it, turned and struck Mr. Woods a blow in the face, which sent him sprawling to the sidewalk
